

Excellent infrastructure

Berlin is located at the crossroads of the major trans-European routes

- From Berlin, every major European market is just a day's drive away by truck.
- Berlin's central train station, the Hauptbahnhof, is Europe's largest and most modern transfer station, making the city the connection point between western and eastern Europe.
- The Berlin Brandenburg Airport (BER) will be serving an even bigger number of passengers and will create additional jobs in industries such as mobility, life sciences and services.
